Nark, Nark, Who's There?

Details about Kalum, the King of Fort Totten, continue to emerge. Kalum was threatening people with this sword that he keeps (all royalty need a weapon for show). That was when the Badgers showed up and got scared of him because Badgers are not trained in any aspect of police work. Plus, no Badger wants to be the one that loses his or her job for messing with anyone from our favorite fecal family, the Turdlings.

So, Devil's Lake SWAT was called in and they were prepared to bust up the house, use tear gas, whatever. Kalum, in the presence of actual trained officers, gave up without incident. He even locked his vicious dog in the bathroom.

"Don't hurt my dog! Don't hurt my dog!" he kept crying and sobbing. Yeah, shoulda let them use the tear gas because he was such a crybaby! He doesn't care about his own children, nor yours, and how much danger he puts them in, nor how he ruins your life and everyone else's by feeding drugs to the kids in your community. But, his dog, the one that makes him feel like he has a big hard-on when it terrorizes neighbors, well that, is a different story! Probably because that dog licks him, no matter what he has done. Ah! Puppy love!

So, now he is in jail and who knows for how long? What jail? Well, the one on the rez, of course! They wait on him, hand and foot there! His girlfriend, Lacy, brings him drugs and sex, and cell phones so he can continue to run his business, only now, from the protected walls of the cop shop!

They cater to him, bring him whatever he wants and allow him to do whatever he wants. He has to stay in that jail because apparently, the neighborhood, the community has become less and less tolerant of the bullying by him and his family.

Can't put him in a real jail because he would nark out the whole family! As big and tall as that moron is, he can't endure 10 minutes of not being catered to. He would sell out the entire Turdclan and they know it. The trembling lip, tears, and whiney voice (honestly, some thought there was a woman in there with really bad cramps by the way he was whining!).

If he "narks while in custody of the Badgers" all is well! What would the badgers do with the information? Go out and arrest someone? Hah! Go out and bust someone in the Turdclan and make them do real time? Double Hah!

Joke Jail is the only safe place for the little Turd King

Worst of all, the dispatchers would lose their jobs because he would rat them out too.

So, as they bring him pizza, burgers, tend to his puppy, allow him to operate his business from his cell, they wear invisible ear plugs so they need not report anything they hear, and blinders so they don't have to report anything they see..

Kalum is starting to like those guys now. Maybe because they licked him?

Real Jail, Real Time

It wasn't that long ago that 18- or was it 19(?) people were arrested in Devil's Lake, Oberon and the rez in a drug sweep. Mere dust bunnies, super low-level dealers, not one of them big enough or connected enough to rate on the legal Richter Scale more than a tiny blip. All this while law enforcement tripped over itself to ignore the blatant big timers that continue to run their operations and, in some cases, got to lunch, dinner and party with top law enforcement in that area.

Everyone is guessing as to who narked out all the small timers. Considering how small they were, narking them out, essentially consolidated all the drug profits into the hands of bigger dealers. So, one can only guess and would be most likely accurate or close, regardless of where they throw the darts in the Oh Oh Bar.

Out of all of these "Dealers" caught up in that sweep, several who were already on probation and one or two repeat offenders.. everyone got reduced charges (from tiny to nothing, including those who were on probation and should have been hauled in to make "Probation" actually mean something.

All got off, except one. ONE. Not the biggest fish in the barrel, but only Blaine Anderson is doing real time. Seven Years. He is locked up and here's the rub:

People are spreading rumors that he is narking out everyone while in prison. Think again. Here is where common sense would have to intervene and ticket any brain cells that are buying into that dumb logic. IF he were the one narking people out, HE would not be in jail. The idea of narking people out is to trade your freedom for theirs.

Clearly, the man remains locked up, ergo, not talking and not narking.

If you want to know who is narking, you have a better candidates list from those who got off with NOTHING! Further, remember: Someone sold these people out to begin with.

Who is making extra money? Remaining free despite the many encounters with law enforcement? That is where you look. Chances are, that person will be much wealthier than the lowly pill dealers who dealt to support their habits.

Not saying they should not have been arrested and jailed. They should have been. All of them, not just the one. And, with them should go their suppliers and the big boys who actually make a lifestyle by profiting from all this.

Drug trade only barely slowed down in that town after the raid. The big boys never missed a beat!

Little guys were all small sacrifices, and that is how the game is played.

Want to get the drugs and drug related crimes and behaviors cleaned up in that town? In that State? Demand jail time and demand that those you know are involved be investigated until they bleed information and their connections are also rendered arrested.

Playing "Nark, Nark" with the little guys, is a waste of time.

Trying to set up a guy who is doing time to take the blame, is cowardice on top of criminal stupidity.

Yes, it will lead to high places, and familiar faces. So be it. Lying to yourself, lying to the public, putting on a dog and pony show but letting the big guys go ain't cuttin' it no more.

Dawg, Deputy Dawg, Ma'am

Our favorite Deputy Dawg, loser of the last election, Bercier, has now wrangled a job with the Devil's Lake PD. You think he is there to protect and serve? You be right on that! The question is: Whom does he protect and Whom does he serve?

Keep your eye on that boy, he is there to insure nothing goes wrong with the supply side of underground economics.

Why, when he was not around for a few months, hardly a truckload of drugs could safely roll in! But, now he is back! And close enough to once again, do his part.

Whew! Ol' Pete was getting piles worrying about that one!

Bigger Picture

Check out the LINKS page for links to the DailyKos blog. The more educated among us will appreciate the research and results in there. Like I say: Trouble with this nation begins and resides in Indian Country.

That blog covers the scandals of Abramoff, the lobbyist that was funneling millions in influence to members of congress and to appointees in powerful places--- all that money came from Indian Country. It was the Indian Casino Scam where he would play one tribe against the other and get paid by both. He was paid millions by one to lobby for them to get a casino, and millions by others to prevent that same tribe from being able to license a casino.

Those millions, my friends, were given to the Tribes for programs to help their people, but diverted to political power players who squandered it all on bribery of officials in high places. Billions of dollars go without audit or accounting in Indian Country every year. Let me know when it all adds up for you and you can see that dismissing, refusing to look because it is in Indian Country, is making it worse, not better.

Abramoff took down a top Republican House Leader, Tom DeLay. And then the investigation stopped cold. Now, pleading guilty and doing time, the investigation stops cold. Corruption not worth pursuing? Or were people in high places opening doors and shutting windows to change the light once again? You decide! But, before you do, know that the same "Justice Department" that investigated and tried him and sent him to prison, is now lobbying for his early release!

Ask yourself: "Whom do they serve? Whom do they protect?"

Now, take a look at the 8 USAG's who were summarily dismissed recently and the whole wobbly scandal that has raised and the lies we were all told to cover that up. At least 5 of the 8 were working on issues and investigating corruption in Indian Country.

Suddenly, they don't have a job?

And look at how the departments that oversee the politics of Indian Country are always in turmoil. No leader allowed to stay for very long before they are dismissed or transferred and the affairs in Indian Country are never investigated because of the turmoil caused by constantly churning the department leadership and never allowing anything to follow through.

Still think this is all about Indians?

Look around, dear readers, we are all Indians in this one! If we don't move our political will to clean up and set right the corruption and injustices in Indian Country, our nation will continue to tumble into the abyss of corruption, payoffs, scandals and worse.

The Justice System continues to pretzel logic in order to protect the system, at the expense of our freedoms, rights and our democracy.

Justifying corrupt rulings and saying they are "sparing the country more exposure to scandal" by sweeping these cases under the carpet and not revisiting the ones they know, absolutely, were illegally processed and ruled upon; by allowing guilty pleas to stop cold, any investigation into corruption in politics, or most recently, stopped in its tracks the investigation into the biggest kiddie porn seizure in North America; we must ask ourselves and demand answers from those who hold the final say over our Justice System: "Whom do you Serve? Whom do you protect?"

By allowing the media to distract us from real cases and causes that affect our lives on every level, and by willfully remaining ignorant because we are "weary of the Scandal Parade", we self-inflict wounds to our future that will never heal.

Logic and common sense should not be dumbed down to where we accept corruption, even if it is disguised as incompetence, as the way business is done and will be done in our name and with our tax dollars.

If we dare to look in Indian Country, we will see the root ball of the corruption that has vined and twined its way into every seat of power in this country.

Only when we find the courage to step up and demand from our elected and appointed officials, the Truth and the right things be done, no matter whose ox gets gored, only then can we begin to regain all that we have lost both at home and in the eyes of the world that watch our decline like the Last Days of Rome.

I encourage, cajole, and push the Indian People to do their part. But it won't work for them or any of us if we do not also do our part.

You see how they are mistreated and you suspect that you are mistreated and misled. To both the Indians and the Others I say: It is what it is and it will only get worse if we do not make a stand and make it work clean, as it was designed to do, at inception.

You would not allow thieves and criminals to take our children from our homes and raise them as their own, would you? Essentially, by allowing them to run and ruin our way of life and government, that is what we are all doing.

We can see, now, more clearly, that we are all part of the bigger picture. That we must work to help one another or we are all lost.

You know where to find me.
